THE E. & N. A. RAILWAY CO.

A STATEMENT OF THE BONDED DEBT OF THE COMPANY.

[From the Boston Journal Sept 30.]

The fact that this road was originally intended to form part of the consolidated line to Halifax, and Boston capitalists being interested in it pecuniarily, the following complete statement of its outstanding bonds from an authorized source will be acceptable to our readers:—

It is generally known that this company stopped interest on its floating liabilities a few months since, and its investigating committee have now under consideration a plan, to be reported in a few days, which it is thought the creditors will accept, and thus place the company on a good footing again.

First. An issue of $280,000 of 6 per cent twenty year currency bonds, dated August first 1863, and payable August first, 1883. Of these $261,000 have been called in, cancelled and returned to the city treasurer of Bangor as per his receipts leaving $19,000 still outstanding, on which the coupons have been regularly paid up to and including August 1, 1875. Coupons payable at the office of the company in Bangor. Bonds $1000 each.

Second. An issue by the city of Bangor to the European and North American Railway of $1,000,000 twenty-five year 6 per cent, currency bonds, dated January 1, 1869, and payable January 1, 1894. Coupons payable in Boston, January 1, and July 1, and have been paid by the railway company to and including January 1, 1875. These bonds, $1000 each, were all sold, and the whole issue is outstanding. They are secure by a first mortgage of road from Bangor to Winn, fifty-six miles.

Third. An issue by the railway company of $2,000,000 thirty year 6 per cent. gold bonds (principal and interest), dated March 1, 1860, and payable March 1, 1890. Coupons payable in New York March 1, and September 1, and have been paid to and including March 1, 1875. Bonds $1000 each, secured by a first mortgage on the lands granted the company by the State of Maine, a first mortgage on railway from Winn to the St Croix River—about 58 miles—and by a second mortgage on the railway from Bangor to Winn—about 56 miles. Of these bonds $1,096,000 have been disposed of, leaving $11,000 unsold but pledged at the Bangor Savings Bank as collateral security for loans.

Fourth. An issue by the New Brunswick Railway Company of £41,000 of thirty year 6 per cent. gold bonds (principal and interest), dated July 1, 1867, and payable July 1, 1897, coupons payable January 1 and July 1, and have been paid on all bonds sold, to and including July 1, 1875. Total sold and outstanding, £361,000, or about $1,760,000, leaving unsold £49,400, or $240,000, which are pledged as security for loans in London. Bonds £200 each. They are secured by a first mortgage on the entire line of road in New Brunswick—about 88 miles.

Fifth. On the 5th of December, 1872, after consolidation with the New Brunswick Company, an issue of $6,000,000 of bonds was authorized for the purpose named in article 8 of the consolidation agreement. Of this issue $5,000,000 were to be set apart and used only for the redemption and payment of the $5,000,000 of first mortgage bonds upon the consolidated railway, viz: $[illegible],000,000 in Maine and $2,000,000 in New Brunswick. The other $1,000,000 to be used to pay debts, purchase rolling stock, &c. Under this authority $1,500,000 of these consolidated bonds were printed and $1,000,000 only approved and signed by the trustees and duly prepared for use. These were 6 per cent. bonds, 40 years to run, principal and interest in gold dated May 1, 1873, payable May 1, 1913, coupons May 1 and November 1, payable in New York. Secured by a mortgage upon the entire line of railway from Bangor to St John, N. B., and also a second mortgage upon the lands granted by the State of Maine to the European and North American Railway Company. Of these bonds $6000 only have been sold. The balance, $994,000, are pledged as collateral security for loans of money to the company.

STATEMENT OF THE OUTSTANDING BONDS OF THE BANGOR AND PISCATAQUIS RAILROAD COMPANY.

First. An issue by the city of Bangor to the company of $600,000 thirty-year 6 per cent, currency bonds, dated April 1, 1869, and payable April 1, 1899. Coupons payable in Boston April 1 and October 1 and to paid and including April 1, 1875. Bonds $500 and $1000 each. Secured by a first mortgage on the entire line of railway—58 miles.

Second. An issue by the city of Bangor to the company of $122,000 7 per cent. currency bonds, dated October 1, 1871, and payable April 1 1899. Coupons payable in Boston April 1 and October 1 and paid to and including April 1, 1875. Bonds $500 and $1000 each. Secured by first mortgage as above.

Third. An issue by the city of Bangor to the company of $92,000 7 per cent. currency bonds, dated December 1, 1874 and payable April 1, 1899, coupons payable in Boston April 1 and October 1, and paid to and including April 1, 1875. Secured same as the above. All the foregoing have been sold and are outstanding. Bonds $1000 each.

Fourth. An issue by the railway company of $200,000 twenty-eight year 7 per cent. gold bonds (principal and interest), dated February 1, 1871 and payable February 1, 1899, coupons February 1 and August 1. None of these bonds sold, but all pledged at the Bangor Savings Bank as collateral security for a loan of $100,000. Interest has been paid on this loan to September 23, 1875.

COVERED AND UNCOVERED MANURES. Barn cellars for preserving manure we hold in high estimation, but were hardly prepared for so marked a contrast between crops grown on covered and uncovered manure as we find reported by Lord Kinnaird, a Scotch land-owner and farmer:

"Four acres of good soil were measured, two of them were manured with ordinary barn-yard manure and two with an equal quantity of manure from the covered shed. The whole was planted with potatoes. The products of each acre were as follows:

Potatoes treated with barn-yard manure:
One acre produced [illegible] bushels.
One acre produced [illegible] bushels.
Potatoes manured from the covered shed:
One acre produced [illegible] bushels.
One acre produced [illegible] bushels.

The next year the land was sown with wheat, the produce of which was as follows:

Wheat on land manured with barn-yard manure:

One acre produced 41 bushels, 18 pounds, (of 61 pounds per bushel).

One acre produced 42 bushels, 38 pounds, (of 61 pounds per bushel).

Wheat on land manured from covered shed:

One acre produced 55 bushels, 5 pounds, (of 61 pounds per bushel).

One acre produced 58 bushels 17 pounds, (of 61 pounds per bushel).

The straw also yielded one-third more upon the land fertilized with the manure from the covered stalls than upon that to which the ordinary manure was applied."

Mrs. Kitching, a lady boarder at the Tontine, Brunswick, who was thrown from her horse in front of the Hotel, on Friday of last week, now lies in a critical condition at the house. She was taken up in an insensible condition and virtually remained so, up to Wednesday. For an instant she seems sensible and utters a word or two but soon relapses.

Piscataquis.

The Observer says that a case on trial at Dover last week—Washburn vs. the town of Guilford—was interesting though a somewhat lamentable one. It was in regard to the maintenance of widow Washburn, an old lady 9[illegible] years of age. She was put upon the stand Thursday and Friday as a witness, and her very feeble condition clearly indicated that she can survive this life but a few months at most.

MONDAY, OCT. 4, 1875.

A SPECIMEN OF THE "HARD MONEY" DEMOCRACY OF MAINE.

Harper's Weekly regards the heavy Democratic gains in Maine as likely to encourage the inflationists, probably because this was the Democratic currency plank: "A sound currency, coin or its equivalent, is essential to stability in business and a restoration to prosperity. Steps toward Specie Payment and no step backward."—N. Y. World.

The above only shows that Harper's Weekly better appreciates the value of Democratic platforms and keeps better posted as to the actual sentiments of Maine Democracy than does the New York World. If that metropolitan organ will examine its party exchanges from this State it will fail to find one of them arguing for hard money while all of them are glorifying "Bill Allen" and the others whom the World denounces as "corruptionists" and "repudiationists." Our election was over several weeks ago and the Democratic organs have no further use for that platform. We invite the World's attention to an example of the trustworthiness of Democratic declarations in this vicinity. When the platform containing the above quoted hard-money doctrine was published in the Commercial of June 23, that paper boasted of it editorially in these words:

"The delegates came together with the purpose of making such a platform and presenting such a candidate for Governor as the principles of a sound government and the exigencies of the hour demanded. How well their work has been performed the people are already aware. Both the platform and the candidates have their hearty endorsement and both will be heartily ratified at the polls in September."

In the same paper the accepting speech of the candidate for Governor was warmly praised and in that speech he said:

"I accept the nomination and cordially endorse the platform so unanimously adopted."

But that was over three months ago and it is almost painfully ludicrous to find the Commercial of last Saturday, in an article which [illegible] by denouncing "the amazing idiocy of the brawling lunatics who call themselves Democrats in Ohio and Pennsylvania," actually quoting in proof of Democratic financial soundness the letter of Senator Bayard to "a Maine Democrat," which means Marcellus Emery. Now the World arraigns the Ohio leaders as "idiots" and "rascals" for proposing inflation of the currency and repudiation of the bonds—the last supreme felicity of men asking custody of the nation's honor and fisc—while the Bangor Commercial, the home organ of the late Democratic candidate for Governor and Senator Bayard's medium of communication with "Maine Democrats," has all along been hurrahing for Pendleton and "Glorious Old William Allen," and on the same Saturday with the World article kicked over the Augusta hypocrisy and endorsed the Columbus inflation and repudiation doctrines as follows:

"The declarations of the Ohio platform were the objects of harsh criticism by nearly all the Republican papers of the country and by too many of the Democratic papers of the East. [Will the World make a note of that?] They were treated as the ebullitions of folly and fraught with mischief to the welfare of the people, rather than as they are the rich creations of profound thought and the sound production of profound statesmanship."

Perhaps the above and similar expressions in other Democratic papers in this State will enable the World to understand why Democratic gains in Maine are calculated to encourage the inflationists."

THE WAR ON THE BONDHOLDERS.

[From the New York Tribune.]

We believe the present campaign in Ohio and Pennsylvania has certain features never before seen. Of course ignorance and malice have always felt resentment against the prosperity of others. As long as envy is a human passion, those who have little and know little will feel harshly against those who seem to have the advantage of them. But never before has this meanest of passions been directed so savagely and so exclusively against the creditors of the nation. Every other form of wealth is read is forgotten by the blatant repudiation orators. The manufacturer is coddled and sympathized with in their harangues; the merchant is assured that inflation will bring to his door the clearest roads to fortune. The lord of broad acres is treated with respectful flattery. Gov. Allen, who is himself a rich man, makes haste to free himself from any suspicion of ever having lent money to the nation. He sometimes cries out, in a voice distinctly audible in adjoining States, "I do not own a dollar of property except in land, the creation of God Almighty." He seems to think, and the strange infatuation is shared by more people in his State than we like to admit, that there is something crooked and sinister in the fact of a man's buying and holding Government securities. Their papers and stumpers are redolent of abuse of this hateful class. They are daily held up to public reprobation and contempt. They are accused of suborning legislators and debauching the integrity of politicians. The mildest scheme of punishment yet suggested for them is to take away their ill-gotten gains from them, and Mr. Kelly, not satisfied with that, suggests that laboring men shall move immediately upon their breathing apparatus.

You rarely hear any reason given for this furious and irrational abuse. Most of the orators content themselves with epithets and metaphors in referring to the coupon clippers, the blood-suckers, who are draining the country of its life. When they do condescend to details they have only two crimes to lay at the door of these miscreants: one is that they get their money in gold and the other is that their bonds are not taxed. This is the head and front of their offending. We will not at this moment consider the moral question whether it is right to keep promises and contracts solemnly made, but simply look for a moment to see if the holders of national securities are especially favored in their investments.

It is true they receive their interest in gold, but certainly those who denounce that metal and glorify printed paper should not so savagely envy those who get the worse currency. The only object and effort of resumptionists is to make the paper money as good as gold, and to annihilate whatever advantage may lie in favor of gold-bearing bonds. But because these bonds are considered better and safer than any other form of investment, they bear a higher price than most others. They produce to the holders only five per cent. or less, on the money invested. This at once disposes of the charge that they pay no tax. A man in Ohio who has money to lend, counts upon receiving ten per cent. interest. Although the usury law of that State allows just eight, ten is everywhere paid. This, of course, is subject to taxation, so that he nets some only seven or eight per cent. The man who buys a Government bond pays this tax, in the cost of his bond and the low rate of interest, the Government getting his money for half price. After he has clipped his coupons, drawn and sold his gold, the bondholder has less income from his money than would be considered a living rate of profit from any other line of business in the State. This is the case, properly and naturally enough, in every civilized country in the world. Government securities are and ought to be the safest, and consequently the least productive, of all forms of investment.

It seems hardly worth while to refer to the moral bearings of this question, as the class of men who devote themselves to the cause of repudiation may be presumed to be destitute of any moral perceptions whatever. If any glimmer of honesty remains in a man who is tempted to act with the reckless demagogues who are trying to get into office by destroying the public credit, he has only to remember one fact. The National debt was incurred in the effort to save the life of the nation. If these bonds had not been bought, we would now have no National existence. They could never have been placed except under the pledge that interest and principal would be paid in the only currency recognized throughout the world. The regularity with which these obligations have been thus far met, has enabled us to fund them at a lower rate of interest. If this miserable rascality and folly of the repudiators had never been heard of, our credit would to-day be as good as that of any other country on earth, and we could borrow, if desired, at the lowest rate of interest. In short, every convention which tampers with this question of National honesty, every blatherskite who makes a Cary or an Allen speech, hurts in some degree the business standing of this country and makes its paper less valuable, besides committing a shameless offense against law and honor and against the spirit of the commandment which forbids men to steal.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S SPEECH.

[From the Boston Journal.]

The President, for a wonder, has made a speech of some length at the reunion of the Army of the Tennessee at Des Moines and it is decidedly as good as it is long. He defines his position on the great question of reconciliation with at once the boldness and the fairness that ought to be expected of the first of our soldiers. He would give to those who fought against us every privilege we claim for ourselves, but we can neither apologize for the past nor allow its fruits to be hazarded. This is the essence of Republican sentiment—perhaps we should rather say, of the true patriotic sentiment of the country. In giving a comprehensive glance at the means of securing the prize for which our soldiers fought, the President says they must be found in the cultivation of popular intelligence, of freedom of thought and utterance, of pure morals and equal rights. To this end schools exempt from atheistic and sectarian control and complete separation of church and State are the necessary conditions. This, indeed, is the truth of the situation in a nutshell. As the President says the next great national contest will have no geographical line of division like Mason and Dixon's, but it will be between patriotism and intelligence on one side and superstition, ambition and ignorance on the other. The President will surprise many with the reach of these thoughts, but those who know him will not be surprised that he is wholly on the right side of the great issues he outlines.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

The exhortation to cultivate the substantial virtues that distinguished our ancestors is always timely, and it is gratifying that the President, at almost the first occasion during his official term when he has spoken in public on other themes than those pertaining to the immediate duties of his office, should have given testimony to the worth of sound intellectual and moral training.

[From the N. Y. Mail.]

It shows a patriot's anxiety for the future of the country, and a statesman's apprehension as to the only means of securing the fruits of Freedom's victory to our children—the preservation of our common school system in all its purity and freedom, from the blight of sectarianism. If the fountains are pure, the stream will take care of itself.

THE MASSACHUSETTS PLATFORM.

The platform of the Republican party in Massachusetts is an extraordinarily good one, and this not more in its political than its rhetorical aspect. It is brief enough to be read and it will well pay perusal. A Massachusetts Democrat, possessing a sense of humor, and just having digested the resolutions of his party, must enjoy that opening phrase which declares that the Republicans have done nothing which necessitates their affirming that they are not secessionists, and in the Ruskin-like picture of the Democracy in the attitude of a penitent, with the Ohio rag-money resolutions in one hand, and the Vicksburg Herald in the other behind its back, one is reminded at once of Reynard the fox, who even on his way to the monastery could not refrain from clutching a stray chicken. The resolutions are admirably written, and the sentiments they contain will commend themselves to the American people.—Providence Journal.

MAINE CENTRAL. The directors of the Maine Central railroad met at the Falmouth Friday afternoon. All of the Board were present except Mr Hill. The resignation of Charles F. Hatch as General Manager was accepted. The matter of discontinuing the night Pullman train was considered and although no definite action was taken, the trains will probably be suspended for the winter about Dec. 1st. The difference of opinion existing between the interpretation of the Boston & Maine and the Maine Central respecting the contract of last December, was considered and the point referred to Solicitor Noyes for his opinion. The point is that the B. & M. claim the right to have their cars taken over the Maine Central the same as are the Eastern now. The Maine Central hold that the contract does not provide for such transportation. The Eastern members of the Board returned home last evening.—Press.

Last week in Ohio a number of farmers, infuriated at the murder of a young girl in the woods, broke open a jail, took out of it the man accused of the murder, and hanged him. The poor creature had been accused by his wife; he solemnly denied, in his last moments, having committed the murder, and asserted that his wife charged him because she was insanely jealous of him. Now it turns out that the man was innocent, but unfortunately he is dead. Evidence has since come to light showing that the wife committed the murder in a moment of jealous rage and then charged it upon her husband. In the dead woman's hand was found a lock of the wife's hair, torn from her head in the deadly struggle. The case affords a terrible condemnation of lynch law.

IS THERE A MAN IN THE MOON? At Pamlateska, the highest point with one exception on the Himalaya range, the Russian Government has for several years maintained an astronomical observatory, from which a remarkable discovery has recently been announced. The particulars are as follows:

For several months a peculiar bright spot had been discovered, sliding from the extreme edge of the moon's disk, at a point where no mountains break the continuity of its perimeter. This light suddenly disappeared and remained invisible for nearly two months. It has lately reappeared in greater brilliancy than ever, and the immense power of the telescope attached to the above observatory, so well known in the scientific world, has developed the fact that the light proceeds from some huge burnished substance, acting as a mirror, which must be at least 100 feet in diameter. The most astonishing thing in the matter is the almost complete proof that this is actually a mirror of artificial construction, and the theory of the savans at Pamlateska is, that it is erected for observing the phases of the earth's surface.

It is well known that the immense bight of that portion of the moon which is turned toward the earth, not only, through the well known laws of gravitation, keeps that portion of her surface presented toward us, but also renders it uninhabitable. It is supposed that the side turned from us may have an atmosphere suitable for an animal life, and that intelligent beings, observing the halo of light shed around its horizon by reflections from the earth, may have taken this means to ascertain the cause. Some ingenious device to place a mirror at a hight where animal life could not be sustained was the result. It is to be hoped that this discovery may lead to others in regard to our interesting satellite.

MONSTER GRAPEVINE FOR THE CENTENNIAL. Last evening the celebrated monster grapevine of Santa Barbara arrived on board the steamer Mohongo, boxed up in seven large boxes for shipment to the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition, by request of our State Centennial Commissioners. The enormous proportions and unequalled fruitage of this wondrous vine have made its fame world-wide. Its foliage covered 10,000 square feet, bore six tons of grapes annually, and is from 60 to 100 years old. Eight feet from the ground it is five and a half feet in circumference. It branches out into twenty large limbs at that height, and one of these limbs is 27 inches in circumference. This limb is the exact size of the Queen of England's celebrated Hampton Court vine, which is the largest in all Europe. The Santa Barbara vine will be prominent among the curiosities at the centennial, and of immense value to California by attracting the attention of the world to the wonderful productions of our soil and climate.—San Francisco Chronicle 16th.

The Assistant Treasurer at New York has been directed, by the Secretary of the Treasury to sell $4,000,000 gold during the present month, one million on each Thursday.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Governor Tilden has pardoned seventy convicts in seven months.

The Lowell Courier says that for the prohibitionists "to nominate a ticket would be as good an illustration of cutting off one's nose to spite one's face as could be asked for."

It may be pretty safely predicted, that the Democratic party will have gained nothing even from any successes it may gain in Ohio and Pennsylvania in the present campaign, except a cud of odium which will sink it out of sight in the Presidential election.—St. Paul Pioneer Press (Ind.)

The Worcester Spy repudiates the Democratic advice to the Adams men to roll up their sleeves and go to work for Gaston. It says: "We assure our Democratic counselors that Mr Rice and the whole Republican State ticket will have the most earnest support we can give them."

Mr. Murat Halstead presided at the monster hard-money meeting in Cincinnati and introduced Mr. Schurz to the audience. This made the obituary with which the orator began his argument peculiarly opportune. The Liberal ghost kicking the Democratic corpse for not lying still must have been a peculiarly edifying spectacle to a gentleman of Mr Halstead's sensibilities.—Graphic.

The New York Commercial Advertiser is not far out of the way when it says: "It is noteworthy that the Massachusetts Democrats would have preferred the nomination of any other man to that of Mr. Rice, and it may therefore be taken for granted that they regard him as the most formidable competitor Governor Gaston could have."

The Cincinnati Gazette commends the Democratic party to the attention of laboring men in the following pithy sentence: "Every factory, furnace and machine shop that is now running is a Democratic grief. Every mill that stops, and every merchant or banker that fails is a Democratic joy. The party hopes to rise by the misfortunes of the people, and seeks to lend a hand to bring them."

The St Louis Times tells President Grant that he has just thrown away a more than golden opportunity. He and Jeff. Davis happened to be in that city at the same time, and the Times says that if President Grant had only called on Mr. Davis and extended to him the hand of hearty good will and fellowship, it would have become him (President Grant) "better than his crown." The fools are not all dead yet.

A New Orleans paper of Democratic antecedents wants to know which of the Democratic Parties is the national one—whether it is the inflationists of Ohio, the hard-money men of California, or the protectionists of New York. Every Democratic State, it says, where an election has been held up to this time, or is pending, has agreed to disagree on some material plank of their platform, so that there really cannot be said to be any national, united Democratic Party just at this time.

They have been trying to start a Greenback Club out in Terre Haute, Ind. The canvasser was making some headway among the needy class by diligently telling them that all they wanted was more money, when The Gazette put a very heavy damper on his arguments by announcing that the directors of the National State Bank of the city were deliberating a proposition to reduce their circulation $100,000, since that amount of money and more was lying idle in the vaults, on which they had to pay taxes.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The October number of the UNITED STATES OFFICIAL POSTAL GUIDE begins the second year of the work, and contains all those features which have rendered it so valuable to the business and professional community. The work is strictly official in character, being prepared at the Post Office Department in Washington from official materials, and is the only publication of the kind so authorized. The present number contains the following lists: first, a list of all the Post Offices in the United States, arranged alphabetically, with the County and State annexed; second, a list of all the Post Offices in the United States, arranged by States and Counties; third, a list of all the Counties in the United States arranged alphabetically, with the State in which they are located annexed; fourth, a list of Post Offices established, discontinued, and names changed during the quarter last past; fifth, a list of Post Offices of the first, second and third class, with salary of the postmasters; sixth, a list of Money-order Offices, domestic and international. In the second list a new and hitherto unused system of notation has been adopted, by which one can see at a glance in what part of a given State any county belonging to it is placed. This ingenious system, devised by Dr. J. M. Toner, is fully explained in an illustrative diagram of the State of Ohio accompanying the list. A full topical index accompanies the work. H. O. Houghton & Co., Publishers, Riverside Press, Cambridge, Mass. Thirty-five cents a number; $1.50 per year.

THE BLACK HILLS

General Custer's Opinion on the Failure of the Negotiations.

NEW YORK, Oct 2 Gen Custer says the failure of the recent Black Hills negotiations is the result of holding a council in the heart of the Indian country where the chiefs had the squaw men and the whites married to squaws to advise them Each of these men are anxious to make the payment as large as possible in order that he might reap the benefit through his squaws They should have held the council at some spot remote from Indian agencies and ordered different tribes to consult among themselves and when they had arrived at a decision send delegates to represent them at the council The chiefs would then have been away from the squaw men and in a position to listen to reason He says the Indians are to much pampered and require different treatment He does not anticipate any Indian trouble until next spring when the grass will feed their ponies.

CALIFORNIA.

The Suspended Bank Resumes.

NEW YORK, Oct 2 The Post says the Bank of California reopened at 10 o'clock this forenoon for regular business with an amount of coin sufficient, it is believed, for all emergencies and with a guaranty fund of over $7 000 000

Scene at the Opening—Cheers from the Crowd About the Doors

SAN FRANCISCO Oct 2. By half past 9 this forenoon a crowd began to gather in the vicinity of the Bank of California inside of which every preparation was made for the opening The President stated that the bank was fully prepared to pay all demands on presentation except such as had been provided for otherwise and that there was not a doubt of its ability to go on with their business without further difficulty At the appointed hour the doors swung open amid the cheers of the crowd Evidently by far the greater proportion of those present were there as lookers on, though the services of the tellers were at once called into requisition and the counters were lined with those presenting checks Large amounts of coin were deposited

Confidence Completely Re-established

The Bank of California remains open to-day an hour later than usual on Saturday. For three hours the amount of deposits received exceeded the checks paid by $750,000. Confidence seems completely re-established.

Trouble with the Indians Feared

SAN FRANCISCO. Oct. 2. A despatch from San Diego says serious troubles are feared with the Pala Indians in the mountains in the northeastern portion of that country They have recently been ejected from the lands on the Temecula ranch, which they had long occupied, and to which they are, according to all evidence, entitled in justice and threaten reprisals. They number between 300 and 400 able-bodied men and owing to the remoteness of their locality, about eighty miles inland and the sparseness of the white settlements, grave difficulty seems imminent. Gov Pacheco and Gen Schofield have been telegraphed for arms and troops, but great apprehensions are felt in San Diego.

CUBA.

The Wealthy Spaniards Make an Overture for Peace.

WASHINGTON Oct 2 Information has been received from Havana showing that there is a great deal of dissatisfaction and uneasiness in Cuba among the wealthy Spaniards at the prolongation of the insurrection by which immense damage has resulted to all material interests in the Island, the injury being incalculable. They have therefore united in against hostile movements to suppress the insurrection, believing that by a wise policy peace may be reached between the contending parties without further bloodshed. Not succeeding in their efforts for conciliation and relief in that direction a story comes from sources which are said to be reliable, that these wealthy Spaniards have either directly or indirectly proposed to the Cuban Junta at New York, to co-operate with them in such a manner as may effect an accommodation between the contending parties but that the Junta declined their overture declaring their determination to continue the war until their object in commencing it, namely, the Independence of Cuba, shall have been secured.

War Expenses.

There is no means of ascertaining the entire expense of the war on the part of Spain, further than that $40,000 000 were expended for military purposes in one year—1870-71 in Cuba—to say nothing of the fleet of gun boats in Cuban waters.

The Army and the Losses.

The same official source says that the aggregate force under arms exceeded 100,000 men, more than half of whom were regular troops, and the losses of the army of Cuba exceeded 18,000 men The insurgent forces at that time did not number more than 6,000 of all arms It is in view of such vast expenses without corresponding results, that prominent Spaniards both in Cuba and Spain are Anxious for a Cessation of Hostilities, but it is the opinion of gentlemen at Madrid, as expressed in correspondence, that the want of stability in the Government and the prevalence of civil war in Spain excludes the consideration of the pacification of Cuba

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS. There was a large [illegible] at the temperance meeting in City Hall yesterday afternoon. A number of addresses were made by the ladies. The interest seems to be unflagging. One of the lady speakers spoke of the case of an old man who came to this city Saturday evening from Augusta, and feeling hungry and cold, went into a saloon to obtain something to eat. After indulging his appetite for food he thought he would warm himself up with a drink of whiskey, and sitting near the stove for a little while, he was called upon to drink several times, so that he became perfectly stupefied and knew nothing until the next morning, when he woke up in a lumber yard. He told the lady that he had $90 in his pocket the night before, and had but five cents left Some one had evidently taken advantage of his unfortunate condition and fleeced him. There was a full attendance at the meeting last evening to listen to a very interesting lecture delivered by Mr J. R. McKelvey, of Portland.

The Catholic Fair.

Norombega Hall was very prettily decorated last Saturday afternoon preparatory to the opening of the Ladies' Fair in the evening. The flag of Ireland hangs in the centre of the hall, bearing the words, "God Save Ireland! So Said the Noble Three," at the bottom From this flag festoons of red, white and blue are carried to the sides and corners of the hall. The Sisters of Mercy's circular table stands in front of the entrance, handsomely decorated in red, white and blue, upon the top of which is the bust of Daniel O'Connell. The tables of Ward 2 and 7 and the Sodality are on the left, and the tables of Wards 5, 6 and 3 and those of the Temperance and Rosary Societies on the right. Upon the tables are a large number of useful, ornamental and costly articles for sale. A gold watch will be presented to the lady in Bangor who receives the most votes for it. A large black walnut chair will be presented to the President of any society in the city who receives the largest number of votes, and a gold-headed cane will be presented to any gentleman in the city who is fortunate enough to receive the largest number of votes.

The attendance in the evening was quite large and the young ladies succeeded in gathering a considerable sum of money for the treasury by their winning appeals to take 'chances.' The attendance to-night will undoubtedly be larger, as the attractions are greater. Comic dialogues, recitations, etc., will be given and the excellent music furnished by the Band is not the least attraction.

Chas T. Chase has picked this season a crop of cranberries on his bog in Dixfield, amounting to three or four hundred bushels.

SHAWLS AT CHANDLER'S.

WHY THEY ARE SO CHEAP—COMPARATIVE PRICES OF THIS AND LAST YEAR—STRIPED SHAWLS. If there be one rite of shopping more sacred than all others in the estimation of women, it is the purchase of an India shawl. A bonnet is the toy of a season; a cloak may outlast two winters; a costume is not likely to survive longer, and even furs fade and grow thin, and are at last thrown away, but one of these Eastern wonders of the loom outwears everything in its owner's wardrobe, and may even descend to her daughter with its beauty unchanged and its usefulness unimpaired. Of course, anything so precious is costly, and, what with the consciousness that she is about to spend a great deal of money, and that she will obtain in return something that will be of life-long use, a woman who means to buy an India shawl is preternaturally grave She studies and compares and reflects; she puts questions without end, she tries on shawl after shawl, and she asks to have dozens of others put upon the shoulders of lay figures; she inspects every inch of the delicate fabric to be sure that it is really the faultless thing that it seems, and then, at last, she buys and goes away looking as if at last she knew exactly what perfect happiness was.

This pretty scene has been enacted scores of times within a day or two, at the store of Messrs. Chandler & Co., Nos. 25, 27 and 29 Winter Street, and will probably be acted scores of times more before the vast stock of India shawls which they have just received is exhausted These are not only unusually beautiful, but wonderfully cheap, having been imported from India through Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw & Co., of London, on such terms that Chandler & Co. are enabled, while doing perfect justice to themselves, to offer them at a very great discount from the usual rates. Filled India shawls, that ordinarily could not be bought for less than $1200, can now be obtained for $800 and $100 will now procure one of the reversible shawls that once, last year, could not be bought for less than $200. The owner of the latter style has practically two shawls, since she can, by merely refolding it, present either the medallion or the river pattern to the eyes of beholders. If any one prefers a still more modest price, the $80 shawls are really beautiful, and perfectly finished and matched; and there are hundreds of shawls offered at $75 that would have been considered extremely cheap at $125 last year. The striped shawls which, notwithstanding the popular belief that the old order in India never changes, giving place to new, seem to grow more elegant every year, are shown in great variety. The price of these has been so much reduced that some of them are really as cheaper than ordinary woolen shawls and the finer kinds cost about half as much as formerly. If ever there was a time when it was a duty to buy an India shawl, that time is now, and the place is at No. 27 Winter street.—Boston Globe.

INFLAMMATION OF THE LUNGS.

CLIFTON, N. B, February 17th, 1873.

SIR: In behalf of my family, I wish to acknowledge a debt of gratitude I owe Mr. James I. Fellows. My daughter had been ill with inflammation of the lungs, had raised large quantities of blood and purulent matter, attended with every symptom of consumption. After obtaining the attendance of two eminent physicians, who afforded her no relief, she was persuaded to try Fellows' Syrup of Hypophosphites. Upon taking two bottles we had every reason to believe she would be cured. Her physician was surprised to find her improvement so rapid, and advised her to continue its use, which she did until her complete recovery. Two years have elapsed, during which time she has neither taken nor required any medicine, enjoying good health, and urges all who are afflicted with any lung or chest trouble to use the Hypo. without fail.

My wife, also having been in bad health for some time, and having had typhoid fever in December last which left her much prostrated, was advised by the physicians to use this remedy to build her up. Before taking half a bottle she found herself much benefited, and still continues to use it.

I believe, under kind Providence, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites has been the means of restoring both my wife and daughter, and I hope the afflicted will avail themselves of its use, for although it is widely used, I think its value is not appreciated. Yours truly.

Dr Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry may be well called a "wonder of medical science." It cures coughs and colds instanter! It soothes irritated parts; it heals the inflammation; and even consumption itself yields to its magic influence. 50 cts. and $1 a bottle, large bottles much the cheaper. oct1 d&w1w

LOVE AND AMBITION.

BY MARY E. DODGE.

"I love you, I love you," the fond wave sang,
As she crept to the garment's hem
Of the lordly hill, where her wistful tears
Were gemming its garb as gem.

"I love you, I love you, oh, lift me up
To your place in the sunlit air,
Or bend, if you will, your face to mine,
T[illegible] as the gold of your hair."

"Nay, nay, fair wave, yet ever be sure
Your song is as sweet as can be,
It toucheth me even as toucheth the wind,
Whose harp maketh music for me."

"The wind, the wind," said the murmuring wave,
"The wind is not constant a day,
It blows where it listeth, while I, O Hill,
Am faithful for aye and aye."

"The wind and the sun and the rain," quoth he,
"Are friends who my verdure renew.
But you, little wave, with your softest caress,
Whatever to help me do you?"

"Ah, nothing," she sighed, "but to love and to lave
Your feet with my kisses and tears.
Only this have I done through the centuries past,
Only this can I do through the years."

"O wave, keep your tenderness all for the sea—
I have work which you know not to do.
You cannot mount up to the stars with me,
And I may not come down to you."

But love has no course, and the constant wave
A worshiper early and late,
Still kisses the hem of his ever green robe
And whispers in patience, "I wait."
—Appleton's Journal.

A PHOTOGRAPH OF THE PRESIDENT

BY JOAQUIN MILLER

"That's Grant's race-track."

The man who said this—the tall bony sovereign whom we had picked up somewhere out of the sands of New Jersey that morning in the down trip—jerked his head over his left shoulder toward a high board fence to the right and then, stooping a little, ejected a stream of amber or tobacco juice at the blinking eyes of a little wooly dog that had landed upon the platform and was smelling us as a welcome to Long Branch. After that this tall and angular citizen who seemed to be perfectly at home and to know just what he was talking about, took his carpet bag by its two ears, swung it over his shoulder, and again jerking his head toward the tall board fence [illegible] away at the edge of the crowd toward the hotel.

I had gone to Long Branch almost solely to see the President of the Great Republic—the great man whom my people had placed at the head of my country. Even the [illegible] and [illegible] under these circumstances had for me a great interest. I stopped [illegible] and there contemplated it and wondered if the sort of white washing [illegible] the [illegible] advertisements had any [illegible] significance. I suppose I had as well stood in the sands of Africa and looked in the face of the Sphynx. With my strange imagination, which is a curse, I always [illegible] that even after I have seen the [illegible] picture which I had in my mind stand out the clearer of the two. I could now see the President [illegible] in my mind back there, behind the high board fence, horses, dogs, whiskey bottles and all.

And then had I not seen all these in the glorious works of the patriotic and [illegible] of America always during my years of travel in strange lands? Have not these energetic illustrated journals [illegible] the [illegible] of the civilized world, sent their artists [illegible] into every bank [illegible] of the Continent? Have they not [illegible] the man whom the people have chosen to stand at the head of the Great Republic [illegible] all the world [illegible] years [illegible] a [illegible] of bull pups.

Why then could I not see this second fiddler who [illegible] and made merry while the people groaned [illegible] accumulated [illegible] disasters? There he was in my [illegible] Nero with his [illegible], [illegible] with his horses and other [illegible] back there between his two bulldogs on the high platform with his legs crossed and chewing away in a sort of satisfied [illegible] at the [illegible] of a cigar that had [illegible] it in the fumes of whiskey.

[illegible] truly the picture which I had of the President of the noblest and most [illegible] upon earth [illegible] turned my head [illegible] to take [illegible] race track.

[illegible] of the [illegible] side of the books.

The Queen [illegible] the perfect [illegible] manly respect which [illegible] paid to their country through their sovereign as they lifted the first glass at [illegible] was on the water of Oregon in a [illegible] British man-of-war [illegible] years ago. [illegible] I shall never forget it. And whenever and wherever I see it—and [illegible] whenever and wherever I see a true Englishman and gentleman [illegible]—I, too, [illegible] rising to my feet and saying "The Queen! God bless her!" for I know that I [illegible] with quiet and brave [illegible] gentlemen [illegible] men who would not for the world [illegible] my presence [illegible] my country [illegible].

[illegible] Nelson and Wellington [illegible] strong [illegible] towers in the British bastion [illegible] Her Majesty [illegible].

[illegible] I [illegible] never [illegible] that it [illegible] mean to throw mud at a man [illegible] stoop to throw mud back [illegible]? Your secret [illegible] of practice under such circumstances is very much like striking a [illegible].

I was in the spring [illegible] and alone [illegible] what I was to begin [illegible] gratify what I deemed [illegible] to see the President of my country, but, after being brushed down by the African I descended from my room and informed the clerk of the hotel with an interrogation.

Mr. Clerk [illegible] up and down behind his [illegible] bristling at the mouth with [illegible]. He was the true [illegible] hotel clerk and I [illegible] for a long time. He had two [illegible] toothpicks in his mouth already and was cutting away at them as if he was [illegible] of [illegible] and they were a kind of [illegible] that he was very fond of. I knew perfectly well he was wondering and wondering as he walked up and down and now and then dipped down into the little trough and took another nibble of oats, whether I was a Democrat or Republican and really believed in the third term.

At last the oracle spoke. "So so?" said the oracle and took another nibble of oats. He [illegible] at my mystery [illegible] to be [illegible]. Then he turned to his ledger, looked up and down over the [illegible] as a clerk always will when he does not want to find anything, and at last having fully made up his mind that it was [illegible] and that my nod meant derision, he jerked up his head and said:

"He always drives by in the after noon—when he is sober enough."

Armed with a newspaper and cigar, I lay in ambush for the president in one of the little canvas stables by the roadside, along with a crowd of pleasure seekers, until nearly five o'clock, when some one at my side said quietly: "There goes the President." Perhaps it was an old affair with the others, but there was no commotion, no expression, of good or ill-will whatever, if I may except the little boy on the grass at the outside of the awning, who flipped a peanut-shell after the little one-horse open carriage as it whirled at a good pace up the long level roads.

He had passed within a few paces of us. In fact I had been looking at him for half a minute before I knew that this was the President of the mighty Republic and the great captain [illegible] world was in furore of admiration over only a few years ago. The face is a great face. There is no doubt of that whatever. It is made up of savage strength and gentleness together. Afterward, when I came to know and converse with this man, I [illegible] all the time thinking of a favorite and [illegible] lion in the gardens of London. This splendid beast was in the habit of licking my hand whenever I could get the cross and cruel keeper's back turned, and he would put his paw through the bars, and let me stroke it and fondle with it till he saw the keeper about to turn round, and then he would draw back and wrinkle up his brows and look like a thunder-storm that was ready to burst. In fact to finish the story about the lion, he did burst out on that cross old keeper one day, and with a single paw through the bars scalped him to the shoulders—took head and all.

To get back to the subject. The President was driving along, holding the reins in a safe careless fashion, as if he was used to them, and now and then lifting his hat to the right and left whenever there was any recognition or demonstration whatever, and I believe invariably to the ladies whom he met driving down the beach. In the little knot of people with whom I happened to be sitting I saw but one hat touched. I afterward discovered that this only gentleman of our group was the French barber.

Perhaps I had as well say it here as anywhere, that I don't think the American has less of politeness in his make up—save, perhaps on the Pacific coast and the further South, where there is a sprinkling of Latin blood—than any other human being that is civilized enough to wear a hat.

A man in the plainest black, a very broad shouldered, strong built man, melted away in the crowd of carriages of the line, and I for the first time in my life had seen a president of my country. Dogs, horses, whiskey-bottles—all the picture [illegible]. I even looked in vain for the cigar as he drove back by us after half an hour, for it was not. Yet I afterward noticed, not to enter into the detail about trifles, that the cigar is the rule when driving. The sandy beard is a bit gray, hair thick and black, the face full and the very picture of health and composure, and the man may safely count on a quarter of a century of rest upon earth after retirement.

How we met, how I came to be so honored as to sit with the great captain and talk with him under his roof, of lands and scenes we were equally familiar with in Oregon and all that, would be very interesting indeed. But here I shall draw the line. The man's cottage is his castle and shall not be invaded. All the pleasant little things that passed under the President's roof are sacred. But the satisfaction I felt on finding this man one of the simplest and sincerest, the purest and the best of men I cheerfully share with you who have pride and patriotism to glory in our country's renown and the honor and the good name of her great men.

Do not make a mistake here. I have no favors to ask whatever. I opposed the election of General Grant as President and shall oppose him again, if there be occasion, because ours is not a military government. Since we are a peaceful pastoral country, caring nothing about arms or armies save in an emergency, I do not believe in always having a military man at our head. But I so glory in my country, her great achievements and her great men, and this man now at the head is certainly one of the very greatest that have been given to her.

If any man should go through a great park throwing stones and mud at the most beautiful and the best pieces of marble and doing all in his power to deface them and make them look vile in the eyes of all men, what would be thought of him? And yet that man is very innocent compared to the writer who defames a living man whom the country has set in a high place. Marbles can be replaced, but great men come seldom upon earth. Besides that they are human and can suffer.

I take, perhaps, a sort of savage, certainly a perfectly distinct [illegible] in saying to the Old World and saying it to that under [illegible] sphere that the man now at the head of our common state seems to me, so far as I could see, to be one of the most noble and perfect in the world.

It was my fortune during the past five years to meet with in one way and another about all the heads of the great powers of the Old World, and I am free to say that I saw nothing there more courtly and [illegible], and at the same time simple and [illegible], than the bearing and behavior of the President of the United States who, I am informed, has still for the first time to visit Grant's race-track. Mine was not a hurried visit at all, but extended over some time at Long Branch, and, if this man's every day life is any key to his character, the country ought to count itself very proud indeed of his figure for its great gallery. I am perfectly aware, however, that I know nothing at all about the political life of the great captain, and it is possible he is even as great a failure as an administrator as was the Duke of Wellington. I am only [illegible] to my people of the Great West who have not an opportunity to see the man as he is, or his life and surroundings, that they must journey far before they find a simpler, a more gentle and refined household than that which our President rules over in the cottage at Long Branch. In his domestic administration he is certainly a success and a kinder father is not to be found. I take the responsibility of prophesying that this will be the verdict of time upon his administration of the affairs of the common State also. Grant is [illegible] who will.

In conclusion I must say that some weeks of idling about the Branch where the President was to be seen almost daily, some little intercourse with him, some conversation on knotty subjects which, it seems to me, Congress only succeeds in tying up tighter every time it touches them, some close observation in that gentle and happy household, and [illegible] that assures me that this man is not only a very great man as the world has long since said, but also a very good man indeed. —N. REVOLUTIONARY TWELVE POUNDERS [illegible] Philadelphia, September 2[illegible].

[illegible] Frank Murphy of the twenty [illegible] Pennsylvania Volunteers has sent a letter to [illegible] of Harrisburg in which he gives the following history of the field-pieces at the Marine Hospital in this city:

"The twenty [illegible] pounders now in front of the Marine Hospital, Philadelphia, are Revolutionary relics and they belong to the State of Pennsylvania; they were transferred during Governor Ritner's administration, or in the early part of Governor Porter's, by Colonel Pleasanton, then acting Assistant Adjutant General, without any authority from the Legislature. These pieces [illegible] at the battle of the Brandywine. One of them was dismounted by a shot from the enemy and that piece was slung to a pair of wagon wheels and in that manner dragged to West Chester, where it was remounted. The under part of the breast muzzle was worn off by dragging on the ground. In 1824 when General Lafayette visited Philadelphia [illegible] served at that piece and when the general [illegible] dismounted from the barouche and passed along the line his attention was called to these pieces. He placed his hand under the muzzle and recognized the other. Some years after during 1837 or 1838, they were transferred to the United States and are now in front of the hospital, as above stated. When Colonel Carr, an officer of the war of 1812, was Adjutant-General, and about the year 1823, during Governor Schultz's administration there was a general collection of all old material to be sold or melted up. These pieces would have been disposed of in the same way, but the officers of the artillery companies, among them the Junior Artillery, to which I belonged, discovered that two of the men who assisted in slinging the disabled piece to the wagon wheel under a heavy fire were still living—John Mingle, black and white smith, since dead, and Lieutenant Smith, druggist, since dead. These pieces, if rebushed and mounted on proper carriages—which may be obtained by a requisition on the War Department—would be the most appropriate for firing the salute of the one hundredth anniversary of our independence. Their proper place hereafter should be on the porch in front of the Capitol at Harrisburg, or in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. The following inscriptions are on these pieces: 'These pieces have on them a wreath, surmounted with a crown, below the swell of the muzzle, in advance of the vent "G. R." surmounted with a crown, on the breach ring the name of R. Gilpin, 1756, on the base the weight, 827 pounds.' These pieces were cast during the reign of George II, and are one hundred and nineteen years old. They were cast in the old-fashioned way, with a core, and reamed out."

THE EXCELSIOR
SCHOOL DESK
C. W. Merrill & Co.

Would call the attention of School Boards, Teachers and others, to the

Excelsior School Desk,

of which they are the sole agents and manufacturers for the State of Maine. The

Excelsior School Desk

is the most comfortable, durable and in all respects the best School Desk in the market. Over 500,000 of them are now in use. Testimonials from all parts of the country unite in speaking of the

as the most comfortable and best suited to the health and good position of the student, of any ever seen in the school room.

The distinctive features of this desk that have secured for it a demand unequalled by any other, and that have more than doubled its sale each successive year, are

1st. Its ample seat support, independent of the hinge which effectually prevents the seat from ever dropping or losing its angle, overcoming a serious fault very common to folding seats. It is so arranged as to distribute the weight equally over the four feet, entirely relieving the desk from any unequal strain.

2d. Its patent adjustable friction hinge, very durable and simple in construction, free from any rubber makeshifts, and yet entirely noiseless. The friction holds the seat at any desired inclination when raised. This hinge is used in all the EXCELSIOR FOLDING SEATS.

3d. The curve of the seat and back is constructed on scientific principles, and conforms perfectly to the body's shape in a sitting posture.

4th. The material is of the best quality and finish very handsome in appearance and fully warranted to meet all the requirements of the school room.

Since August 15th of the present year, the

Excelsior School Desks

have been placed in New England alone, in the schools of Pawtucket, R. I., Blackstone, Leominster, Medway, Mendon and Pepperell, Mass., Dover, N. H., Biddeford and Gardiner, Maine, and in every instance where used, they have given entire satisfaction. Since the invention of the many imitations of them have appeared in the market, which, in the essential qualities of a school desk are very inferior to it. We are prepared to furnish schools with the

Excelsior Desk,

Excelsior Desks

at short notice.

PRICE LIST AND CIRCULAR

sent to any Board of Education contemplating the purchase of school furniture. Samples of the

Excelsior Desk

can be seen at our Furniture Warerooms, 56 Main street. School Directors and others are invited to examine the

Excelsior Desk,

as we feel confident from our experience of thirty five years in the manufacture of School Furniture that as regards price and quality, the

Excelsior School Desk

has not its equal in the market.

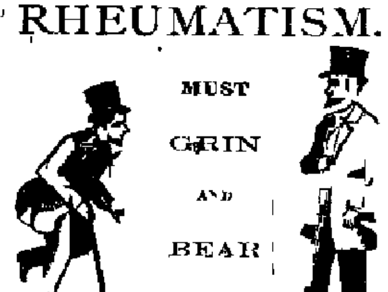
SEA CAPTAIN CURED
—OF—
RHEUMATISM.



HE GRINS WITH JOY.

LEXINGTON, Mass., June 23, 1875.

PROF. ALPHONSE HILLER:

DEAR SIR:—For the alleviation of human suffering I feel it my duty as well as pleasure to certify to the following facts in my own case.

The past spring I was sore afflicted with Sciatic Rheumatism, suffering night after night and all night, without the least cessation, the most excruciating pains I ever knew. My doctor, who practiced in my family for over thirty years, to my entire satisfaction, and in whom I still have the utmost confidence, said that "medicine would do me no good—he could not help me, time probably would and in six or eight weeks it might leave me; in the meantime I must grin and bear it." But I was not disposed to do so, and in my desperation caught at the first article, which under the name of Quack or Patent Medicine, or any other remedy, promised relief. It happened that this was the obtained at No. 38 Hanover st., Boston; the statements accompanying directions seemed reasonable, and I determined to give it a fair trial. I did so, at the same time being without faith in its efficacy. I followed the directions, and the results were that on using the third bottle I was sensible that it was acting powerfully and favorably, and before using the fourth bottle, my pain had passed away, and I now have occasion to grin (with joy) that I no longer have to bear them.

Yours respectfully,
WM. D. PHELPS.

We endorse the above testimony as genuine.
G. C. GOODWIN & CO.,
38 Hanover Street.

Mr. Phelps is a gentleman well and favorably known in this community, and, for the past forty years has been recognized by our shipping merchants as one of the most successful captains sailing from the port of Boston. This testimony is genuine and speaks more than volumes could express, in favor of the great merits of the Diamond Rheumatic Cure.

This medicine is prepared by a careful, experienced and conscientious physician in obedience to the desire of numberless friends in the profession, in the trade and among the people. Every bottle is warranted to contain the full strength of the medicine in its highest state of purity and development, and is superior to any medicine ever compounded for this terrible complaint.

In simple cases sometimes one or two doses suffice. In the most chronic cases it is sure to give way by the use of four or five bottles. By this efficient and simple remedy, hundreds of dollars are saved to those who can least afford to throw it away, as surely it is by the purchase of useless prescriptions.

This medicine is for sale at all druggists' throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the wholesale druggists in Boston, Concord, N. H., Worcester, Providence, Portland, Bangor and other places.
